According to information which I consider reliable, operations will soon be resumed at the Jumbo mine. I am also informed that machinery has been bought for a concentrator which will be built and put into operation at as early a date as possible."

Caucus Next Monday Night

A caucus will be held in the town hall next Monday night at 8 o'clock for the purpose of nominating candidates for the coming municipal election which occurs on Tuesday, April 6.

The following officers are to be elected:

A mayor, who shall serve one year.

Three councilmen, who shall serve two years.

One member of the school board who will succeed Mrs. M. O. Johnson whose term expires this year.

The councilmen whose terms expire this year are:

E. A. Lindman
F. E. Gingsass
E. F. Carlstrom

The hold-over members of the council are:

Thomas Dalgity
Samuel Cunningham
G. E. Diemart

The election of municipal officers is a matter which concerns the welfare of the town and there should be a good attendance at the caucus in order that satisfactory nominations may be made. Remember that no one's name can be placed on the official ballot unless he is nominated at the caucus next Monday night.

Women have just as much right to participate in the caucus as the men. Let there be a good attendance of both sexes, the more the merrier.

Mrs. W. C. Waters and Mrs. Ida Uhler made the round trip to the West Coast this week on the Princess Pat.

Mrs. M. O. Johnson, who has been ill for the past week, is steadily improving.

The Parent-Teachers' Association was well attended last Thursday evening. A good program was listened to with interest and attention. At its conclusion a discussion was led by Mr. C. M. Coulter, relative to the towns enlarging the school playgrounds by purchasing the three lots owned by P. C. McCormack adjacent on the west to the present grounds. Short talks were made in favor of the proposition by H. D. Campbell, J. G. Grant and others, resulting in a motion carrying to the effect that a committee be appointed to confer with the Town Council. Mr. Coulter, who presided over the meeting in the absence of Mrs. M. O. Johnson, the president, appointed the following committee: H. D. Campbell, H. W. Gartley, J. G. Grant.

Sell your furs to W. C. Waters on the Princess Pat.

A depredation was committed Sunday night when some miscreant tore down the Poodle Dog Cafe's sign and also capsized the pails containing small trees in front of the building. If the depredator is apprehended he will learn that such acts committed on either public or private property is an expensive pastime in Wrangell.

Ensign W. J. Carruthers and family returned home yesterday from a visit to Juneau and Douglas.

Bond Issue Discussed

There was a well attended public meeting in the Redmen's lodge room Monday evening for the purpose of discussing the question of whether the Town of Wrangell shall be empowered to issue bonds, for which privilege Congress recently passed a bill whereby the town of Wrangell may, by a majority vote of its electors, issue bonds not exceeding $15000 for the construction, enlargement and equipment of schools; bonds not exceeding $25000 for the acquisition and construction of a water supply system; bonds not exceeding $15000 for the construction of a sewer system; bonds not to exceed $20,000 for the construction of a city dock; bonds not exceeding 5000 for the construction of a floating dock.

The meeting was called to order by Mayor Pritchett who announced that the first business would be the election of a chairman. On motion Mayor Pritchett was elected chairman and J. E. Worden, secretary.

The chairman stated that the meeting had been called at the instance of the town council because it was believed that a public discussion of the question would result in a better understanding of the matter thereby enabling the electors to vote more intelligently on the question.

An invitation was extended to each one present to express his views, either for or against the proposition. The invitation did not go unheeded as there were several highly esteemed citizens in the audience who were not exactly backward in expressing themselves. The majority of those who spoke were against the proposition and one or two of them were disposed to view the question with considerable alarm. One of the leading citizens denounced the idea of empowering the town to issue bonds as being one of the most pernicious attempts at frenzied finance he had ever heard of, and declared that if the town accepted the bill passed by Congress we would be slaves to taxes for the rest of our days, and our children, and our children's children for generations to come would suffer as a result of this king piece of municipal foolishness. He declared that it would be better to set up a soviet government. (Hearty applause.)

Another citizen who formerly lived in South Bend, Wash., stated that that city bonded itself 30 years ago and is still in debt, and that as one of the property owners of Wrangell he would prefer to see the present rate of taxation increased rather than for bonds to be issued.

As the former resident of South Bend took his seat one of Wrangell's business men arose and exclaimed: "Show me a city anywhere that was ever bonded that ever amounted to anything." The applause that followed this remark showed that the speakers who were opposing the proposition were not without support.

The council was criticized for having been responsible for the Act of Congress which gives the electors of Wrangell the privilege of voting on the question. It was pointed out that voters who are not property holders may be very careless of how they vote, and in case the bonding bill should be accepted at the polls on April 6 the poor helpless property holder would be the "goat."

The argument was made repeatedly that it was the height of folly to want to issue bonds in the sum of $80,000 when the town is actually in need of a very much smaller amount. A member of the council explained that the acceptance of the Act of Congress by vote would mean that the town of Wrangell would be "empowered" to issue bonds "in ANY sum not exceeding $80,000," and that the council had never contemplated the issuance of bonds in the sum of $80,000, but only for such amounts as necessity may require. It was also pointed out that voting to "empower" the town to issue bonds in ANY sum not exceeding $80,000 is a very different thing from voting to make it obligatory upon the town to issue bonds for the ENTIRE amount of $80,000. In response to a direct question from one of the audience it was further stated that the council was drafting an ordinance that would prevent the town council from borrowing any money or issuing any bonds for any purpose whatsoever without a petition from two-thirds of the tax payers of the town.

The objectors to the proposition were absolutely unwilling to accept any of the above explanations. They contended that town councils do not necessarily have to be guided by public opinion, and that if the bonding bill is accepted at the polls the new council could repeal any regulations made by the present council, and ignore any petitions that might come from three fourths or even 100 per cent of the tax payers, thereby leaving the said tax payers helpless to do anything about it but pay taxes.

A member of the council stated that he did not feel that there was the slightest cause for being apprehensive that there would ever be a town council elected in Wrangell that would attempt to go against the tide of public opinion to the extent of absolutely ignoring the will of the majority of the tax payers.

At this point in the discussion a citizen of long residence in Wrangell arose and said: "Mr. Chairman: A constituency that would vote for anything as crazy as the bond issue would be extremely likely to elect a council that would do anything! (Applause.)"

The meeting then adjourned.

The Act of Congress which gives the Town of Wrangell the privilege of voting on the question of whether said town shall be empowered to bond itself in any sum not exceeding $80,000, is the result of a request from the present town council.

Several months ago the treasurer of the Wrangell school board appeared before the council and gave notice that within the next year the school board would ask the Town council for money to build an addition to the school house. It was estimated that this addition would cost between $2,500 and $3,000. The town's finances being low the question of issuing bonds for making the proposed addition to the school house was discussed in the presence of the representative of the school board, and no objection was made by any one. At the next meeting of the council a motion prevailed that the clerk be instructed to write Delegate Grigsby requesting him to draft a bill and get it passed by Congress which would empower the Town of Wrangell to issue bonds, PROVIDED the electors of the Town of Wrangell should decide by vote that they were in favor of bonds being issued. A bill of this kind could not be passed by Congress without some certain amount being named as the limit for which bonds could be issued, and the bill would also have to state the purposes for which the bonds were to be issued. Accordingly the mayor appointed the five members of the council who were present a committee of the whole

Arctic Brotherhood Entertains

Another good time was enjoyed last night by the large number of people who accepted the hospitality of the A. B. Lodge. The first part of the evening was spent playing whist. First prizes were won by Mrs. A. M. Myers and Mr. Joseph Boronovich who cut for first place with Mr. Lin Shields. Mrs. William Patterson and Mr. H. D. Campbell received the consolation prizes. After the card party the guests danced until a late hour to the excellent music furnished by Miss Ruth Lindman, Lin Shields and Lawrence Taylor. During the evening a delicious lunch was served in the banquet hall. The committee having the affair in charge was composed of M. O. Johnson, I. C. Bjorge, Henry Dannenberg, L. M. Churchill and Thomas Dalgity.

Robert Harris, a stepson of John T. Towers, arrived from Seattle on the City of Seattle Monday night and will leave this week for the Towers camp at the head of Duncan canal on Kupreanof island. Mr. Harris spent last year at the camp. He has been in Seattle since Christmas.

to fix the limits and name the purposes for which the Town of Wrangell might wish to issue bonds, either now or at some future time. The committee thought it would be well to consider the possible needs of the future and therefore mention the various purposes for which there might arise a need for extra funds. As a safeguard against a possible emergency the committee thought the limits should be placed well beyond the amounts actually required. For instance, the limit of the amount for school purposes was fixed at $15,000 although $3,000 would probably cover all that is required at present. But should still another addition to the school be required later on it would then not be necessary to get another bill through congress in order to issue additional bonds for further school improvements. The committee made their report to the mayor and on motion it was unanimously accepted. Then the matter was at once taken up with Delegate Grigsby and in due time he got the bill through Congress.

The report that has been so industriously circulated that the acceptance of the bonding bill by the electors of Wrangell would automatically double the taxes is without foundation. The total assessed valuation of the Town of Wrangell is $253,514. If the Wrangell bonding bill should be accepted at the election on April 6 there would be no special tax levied until such time as one or more bonds would be issued, and then the special tax, if levied at all, would be only in the same ratio to 2 per cent as the amount of the bonds actually sold would be to $80,000. Therefore if bonds should be issued for $2,500 for a float for the fishermen, or for an addition to the school house, the special tax levy in each case would be one-half mill, making the increase in taxes in each case 50 cents per thousand on the assessed valuation.

Supposing a man now pays $15.00 taxes. If bonds for $2,500 were issued for a fisherman's float, his taxes would then amount to $15.37½.

The Sentinel has no quarrel with those who are opposing the measure. There will never come a time when all the people in any community will view the same question from the same angle. Every one should read the bill through carefully himself and then vote the way he thinks best.

St. Philip's Church The Old Jerusalem

March 21, at 7:30 p. m.

No city ever exercised the influence in world history as did the old Jerusalem. Neither Athens nor Rome has equaled it in power to shape the destinies of the world. From the day of Melchizedek, king of Salem, until its destruction in the days of Hadrian emperor of the Romans, though the smallest of cities, and weakest from a military standpoint, it looms up as the biggest thing in history. But even the old Jerusalem had its end. What did its destruction mean to history? What does it mean today? This will be the theme at St. Philip's Church Sunday, March 21.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

IMPERATIVE NEED FOR ACTION

Twelve Months Since the Signing of the Armistice Practically Wasted — Call for Aid From America Must Be Heeded.

Article V.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

The signing of the armistice ended the fighting. The signing of the peace treaty brought peace, but neither of these acts restored devastated Europe. The great job ahead is the work of reconstruction, and when I write the word "reconstruction" I have not in mind the mere rebuilding of the war-stricken areas of France, Belgium, Italy, Poland and Russia. Gigantic and important as this task is, necessary as it is, it is only a small part of the work of real reconstruction. Hundreds of thousands of square miles make up the actual war zone, the ground marched over, the territory under shell fire. Millions of acres of land that once yielded food in response to the touch of the plow have for the past four years been tilled by high explosives.

Belgium was literally looted, pillaged and ravished. Almost the entire state was violated. Nearly one-eighth of France, her industrial section, was crushed. Buildings were destroyed, factories dismantled. Sixty thousand square miles in Poland were laid waste. Italy suffered terribly. The ground is filled with high explosives, undischarged mines and shells. Every day since the work of recovery and restoration began men working in this zone have been blown to pieces. Billions of feet of barbed wire and millions of tons of metal make a dangerous wilderness out of what was once a highly productive area.

Cities and villages are jungles of twisted, broken, torn wood, iron, brick and stone. I have walked through these villages and have stood stunned by the completeness of the destruction. The streets are uneven and lumpy with brick and stone and plaster and glass, aisles of wreckage. Roofless houses with walls gutted and torn, heaps and piles of broken building material; jagged, ragged pinnacles, masses of debris meet the eye. Had I not known of the war and come upon one of these unsightly, shapeless masses of material, I should have thought nature had entered into a mad conspiracy, combining and concentrating all of the powers of a cyclone, a tornado and an earthquake, and spilled their fury on these mangled, dead villages.

Sights to Wring the Heart.

Picture the refugees returning to these villages—coming back home. What the sight must have meant to them. I have seen them, their faces gray as the gray ruins, standing in the midst of their destroyed homes. I have seen them picking their way over piles of stone and brick through great openings made in the broken walls. I saw in their eyes homesickness, a hurt of heart I never shall forget. Old men and old women and little bare-legged children; now and again a boy with a worn, soiled uniform, some limping on crutches, others wearing an empty sleeve. One thought surged through my mind until it almost sickened me—War. The land of the war zone must be reclaimed. These acres are needed now more than they were before the war. The world's food supply is low. Hundreds of miles of trenches must be filled up. Trees must be planted, the ground must be cleaned of shells, cleared of barbed wire; villages, cities, must be rebuilt; sewer systems must be installed. The mess must be moved. It is a big job.

One great misfortune is that although 12 months have come and gone since the signing of the armistice, no general comprehensive plan of reconstruction has been started. Here and there small sections of the devastated regions are being partly reconstructed. Temporary provision is being made for the homeless. This is all well and good, but intelligent, economical, efficient and speedy reconstruction demands a general plan and an organization big enough to put it over. The doing of this work requires vision and capacity for doing big things well. If the physical reconstruction is left to Europe it will not be finished in 50 years. Here is a chance for America. We have a faculty of doing things on a big scale and in a short period of time. Europe needs our help. If we are to give it eventually, why not now? But the clearing up of the wreckage and the rebuilding is a minor problem compared with the other greater and more important question of reconstruction, the reconstruction of industry, the establishment of normal life.

The reclamation of the devastated area is, after all, only a matter of plan, time and money, and notwithstanding the fact that Europe is bankrupt today, the money must and will come. The barbed wire will be rolled up, the mines and shells will be dug from the fields, the villages will be rebuilt; everything that has been destroyed will be replaced. Physical reconstruction is the least of Europe's problems.

The great problem is the reconstruction of life. The war-devastated and disordered life of the world. It threw everything into confusion; it left the scheme out of balance.

tion of life. The war-devastated and disordered life of the world. It threw everything into confusion; it left the scheme out of balance.

Only Road to Prosperity.

We live by work. Prosperity means production. Poverty is underproduction. Stripping economics of all its high-sounding jargon, the simple truth that everyone knows is that the world has only the things it works to produce.

It may not be amiss to state a few facts known by everyone which explain the meaning of production: We live on the earth. It is land and water. In the ground are minerals. The land grows crops. We need the minerals that are in the ground. We need the crops, but minerals in the ground, as well as the fertile soil, mean nothing until man by his work brings the mineral from the ground and makes the soil yield. We must have food, we must have clothing, we must have shelter, and the only way we can get these things is by working. If little work is done we have a shortage. There isn't enough food to go around, there aren't enough clothes, enough coal, and as a result the prices of all these necessities go 'way up. But this is not so important as the fact that when there is not enough to feed the world some go hungry, others must starve. When there isn't enough coal, some are cold, others freeze. When there aren't enough clothes for everyone, some must be ragged and half-naked. Everything by which we live is the result of work. Stop work, and poverty follows. Work, and plenty results. Work is responsible for everything that goes to make life worth living.

To understand Europe's condition today, one must stop and realize that the war stopped production. The result is a shortage of everything. There isn't enough food, there isn't enough raw material, there isn't enough coal. The whole story is told in the word Poverty.

Only Cure Is in Work.

There is a cure; the prescription can be written in a single word. Everyone knows that word, but knowing the word and adopting the word are different matters. Before we can get back to normal life this word must find root in the consciousness of the people. We must realize that the world will continue sick and grow sicker unless this prescription is taken. Further, we must know that if we delay taking this remedy it will be a longer time before we get well. The prescription is work. Every effort should be made to make every man will to work. Every employer must not contribute to unrest and provoke idleness by refusing to negotiate with his men, and into this negotiation he should go with a friendly spirit and a willingness to compromise. The employer who meets labor with the thought in his mind that he is better equipped to fight than labor, because he has a surplus and can eat and be warm, while labor has been living from hand to mouth and will starve, is shortsighted. He had better get the idea out of his head that you can starve men into submission. There was a day when that was true, but that day has passed, never to come. The man who depends upon his ability to turn a key in the factory door and go off on a vacation, imposing his will on his workmen, will discover that these men stopped a certain "gent," late of Potsdam now of Holland, from doing this very thing to the world. He may wake up some morning to learn a new definition of the word "fight."

One thing that people do not realize is that the men who fought the world's fight for freedom are the men who are now complaining that they are not getting a square deal. Who made up the fighting men of the war, the rank and file of the armies that stopped the Prussian Push? Who were the great majority of the volunteers and the conscripted men numbering millions who went to the front for the allies? The teamsters, the shophands, the millworkers, the factory hands, the coal miners. These are the same men who are the center of the labor problem.

Mr. Employer, you are dealing with ex-soldiers. Please don't forget it. They fought for you. You wouldn't have any business today if it hadn't been for them, and when you think of the bond you bought, remember the blood they gave.

Applied Christianity.

The late Archdeacon Madden of Liverpool used to relate how on one occasion he separated two women, one a Roman Catholic and one a Protestant, who were fighting in the street. Afterward he asked the latter, whom he knew, how she, as a professing Christian, could justify her behavior, to which she replied:

"Well, sir, I was only obeying you. I have often heard you say 'Fight the good fight!' That other woman came into my house and she saw a picture of you on the mantelpiece. 'That's no priest,' said she. 'Nor no parson, neither! He's only an old quack.' Do you think I could stand that, sir? No! 'Touch not the Lord's anointed!' I says, and I ups with my fists and I hits her!"—London Post.

Smart Kid.

An Irish school inspector was examining a class in geography. He had propounded a question regarding longitude and received a correct answer. "And now," he said to the same boy, "what is latitude?"

The youngster hesitated a moment and then with a merry twinkle in his eye he replied, "Please, sir, we have no latitude. The British government won't allow us any."

Two Gas Boats Wrecked. Three Lives Lost

Mrs. George Woods (Native) and daughter, and another child of Hoonah, died of exposure following the wrecking of the gas boat Dove off Poorman's point between there and Cape Omaney, Baronoff island.

George Woods, owner of the boat, had been out trapping with his family. The accident happened as he was coming around from Red Fish bay. He had been having more or less trouble with his magneto on account of the storage batteries not being properly connected. The Dove was driven in close to the point.

Another gas boat that was travelling with the Dove tried to render her assistance, but its wheel rope broke. While an effort was being made to repair it one of the crew stepped on the gasoline feed pipe and broke the connection. This made it impossible to render any assistance to the Dove, and it was only with great difficulty that this companion boat of the Dove managed to get to Port Alexander. The crew worked all night and until 8 o'clock the next morning trying to fix the engine, but without success.

Between 8 and 9 o'clock one of the men took a row boat and succeeded in getting to where the Dove had cast her anchors, but saw no trace of the boat. He looked around for a few moments and finally spied what looked like some clothes on a rock. He rowed in and found that it was George Woods and his wife and girl on a rock exposed to the washing of the seas just off the main shore. Mrs. Wood and daughter were dead.

George Wood was practically unconscious and would have been dead in a short time had he not been found. His breast was black and blue from bruises caused by being beaten against the rock by the washing tide while he was holding on to his wife and daughter.

After Wood had been resuscitated he stated that a high wind came at 11:30 the night before, wrecking the boat completely. He said that he judged it was about 1:30 when his wife died from exposure. Shortly afterward the girl also ceased to show any signs of life.

The boat was completely wrecked, nothing but the engine and a piece of her bed being in sight. The rest of the boat had been smashed into kindling wood. George Wood and family were in Wrangell several weeks last fall and talked of locating here.

A. Lindset, A. Leland, E. Antonson, refugees from the wrecked gas boat, Majnhild, arrived in Wrangell the first of the week, and left on the Jefferson for Ketchikan Tuesday night.

The accident occurred at Coronation island 32 miles from Shakan. The Majnhild was a 40-foot boat with a 10-foot beam, powered with a 16 h. p. Imperial and owned by A. Lindset. He and two other men, A. Leland and E. Antonson, were engaged in halibut fishing.

The tail shaft of the Majnhild broke at 1 o'clock at night. The boat drifted 24 hours during which time everything was done to get the boat to where it would be safe. This could have been easily done if the wind had been blowing in other than a north-easterly direction. Finally it became necessary to anchor when the boat was drifting toward the rocks and was only about 150 yards from shore near Kora Pass. After the boat was anchored the three men left in a row boat to go around the point in search of help.

They soon came upon the Hazel, a 40-foot boat operated by Indians. They solicited help from the Hazel which turned back with the men as though willing to comply with the request, but upon coming in sight of the Majnhild the Indians stated that the water was too rough to go to her. No amount of coaxing would induce them to change from this decision. The water was not so rough, however, but that the three men in a row boat had no difficulty in rowing back to the Majnhild.

A little later the anchor cable chafed in two, and the boat was soon smashed to pieces on the rocks. The three men remained stranded on the beach until "My Fancy" came along and took them to Shakan. From Shakan they were taken to Craig on the Alaska No. 2. At Craig they were taken aboard the Auklet by Jess Neville and brought to Wrangell.

Of Interest to Trappers

A. Everson writes from Telegraph Creek that the fur catch in that vicinity is hardly up to the average this season. He states, however, that trappers find a ready market in Telegraph Creek for their furs. He reports that on the day his letter was written an Indian came in with 16 martens which he sold for $995.

W. C. Waters brought in a collection of furs last evening which included several exceptionally nice wolf skins.

Councilman E. F. Carlstrom returned this week from an outing. An outing these days may also be profitable. Mr. Carlstrom got 20 mink while out.

L. L. Wyatt this week received a letter announcing the death of F. T. Peasley in Morton, Wash., on March 3. Death was caused from ulcers of the stomach.

Mr. Peasley was a retired shingle mill man. In May of last year he and Mrs. Peasley came north for a trip. While here Mr. Peasley became interested in fishing as a means of combining business and pleasure. He and L. L. Wyatt bought the gas boat Sarabil and the two men were out together on the boat most of the time from May till September, when Mr. and Mrs. Peasley returned to their home in Morton. Mr. Peasley was 76 years of age. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity.

The Water Fall cannery will not operate this year, according to a wire received this morning.

The message was for the captain of the steamship Redondo instructing him to return a shipment of tin plate and other cannery supplies intended for the Water Fall plant to Seattle.

The cannery was owned and operated by the late Fremont King and Fred C. Johnstone.

There will be a regular meeting of the Alaska Industrial Union Sunday at 2 p. m. at which fish prices will be determined. All members urged to be present.

L. L. Wyatt,
Sec. Local No. 3.

Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Mathis arrived in Wrangell Friday evening from Petersburg.
